Mr. Kieling,

After reading the article in the Albuquerque Journal North and then finding out that the state may ban the open firing of explosives at Los Alamos National Laboratory I dont not feel the ban is determined in the proper perspective. The area affected is one that is small and animals affected are deer mice and earth worms. I have a son who served two tours in Iraq and if we as a country have to sacrifice deer mice and earth worms in the immediate vicinity of open firing, I am willing to live with that if it could save the life of one of our military.

I do not want the ban imposed on the open fire of explosives at the Los Alamos National Laboratory. Please continue the hazardous permit that allow use of open firing of explosives.
